extension from Traverse City to Petoskey and Bay View, of the Chicago &

West Michigan Railway, will open a new and popular route to the Northern Michigan Summer Resorts.

The new line will be up to the high standard of the C. & W. M. and D. L. & N. system, and with the excellent train service, which will be a special feature. It will be the scenic line of Michigan, running as it does along the shores of lakes and rivers for more than forty miles, passing through the towns of Barker Creek, Spencer Creek, Belaire, Central Lake, Ellsworth, and last, but by no means least, beautiful Charlevoix, than which there is no more delightful summer resort and to which it will be the only all rail line.

Elk Rapids is also reached by a short branch from Williamsburg. For several miles it skirts the shore, almost at the water's edge, of Little Bay, nearly the entire distance from Traverse City being a panorama of beautiful scenery. Our new Summer Book, now ready, will be sent to any address on application, and much information may be obtained from it regarding the Northern Resorts, and the advantages in reaching them possessed by the C. & W. M. and D. L. & N. Lines.

Through sleeping and parlor cars will be run during the summer between Chicago, Detroit, Grand Rapids and Petoskey, via Traverse City and Charlevoix.

Benjamin Morse, a prominent merchant of Shelby, has mysteriously disappeared. He left his home Wednesday, May 4th, to attend the Democratic State convention at Muskegon, and also at the same time to purchase goods, and has not been heard of since. Ex-Gov. Austin Blair of Jackson is engaged writing an article on "Under the Oaks at Jackson, Eighteen Hundred and Forty-Four and Since," for a book to be issued under that title. The venerable "war governor" has a rich store of reminiscence and personal experience associated with the birth of the Republican party, which will be drawn upon to adorn his story. The book will be issued as a Republican campaign document by the Bankers' Art Publishing Co., of Detroit.

Rev. J. J. Van Houten, pastor-elect of the First Ref. church, and family, arrived here with the str. Kalamazoo from Chicago, Thursday morning. The house on Ninth street, formerly occupied by W. Dosker taking part in the exercises. In the afternoon Mr. Van H. will preach his installation sermon. In view of the above there will be no services in the Third Ref. church next Sunday.

Last week a case of diphtheria broke out in the family of J. A. Kooyers, residing in Holland township, which has since resulted fatally. On Saturday of last week their 13 year old son Cha's was taken down with this dreaded disease, and he died Friday morning. Fears are also entertained for the two-year old baby, that it will be likewise attacked. The mention of this death recalls vividly to the mind how two years ago this locality passed through a fearful scourge by reason of this same terrible disease, the death rate for 1890 in this city alone being a 100. What adds specially to the painful features in this case is that Mr. Kooyers has been for years, and is now, the foreman of the News office, and we extend to him and his family the heartfelt sympathy of the entire force of the office in this hour of family bereavement, rendered the more so by the unavoidable rigidity of the sanitary regulations to be enforced on such occasions.—It would be next to criminal on our part to sound an unwarranted alarm, against this first reappearance of diphtheria along the outskirts of our city, it may be well enough to state matters plainly, that this community will look to the public officials for a judicious and firm exercise of the authority with which the laws of health of this state clothe them, and to the medical fraternity for a rigid watch as to every incipient indication of this contagious disease. The News pledges them an unqualified support.

The str. Lizzie Walsh will commence on Monday to make two regular trips daily between this city and the resorts. See time card in another column.

The number of candidates for the republican nomination of attorney general is especially large in the Fifth congressional district. The list now includes G. J. Diekema of this city, F. Davis and W. W. Mitchell of Ionia, and D. McCoy and F. Maynard of Grand Rapids. Beside these there are half a dozen more in other parts of the state.

At the West Michigan furniture factory everything denotes stir and activity. The plant is running twelve hours a day. A large force of men are to work at the foundation walls for the new addition, 135x183 feet. Owing to the treacherous nature of the soil spiles have been driven to the number of 85, on which to rest the foundation. An additional side track has been constructed running into the yard, and the road bed has been graded for another track along Black Lake, north of the present one.

The board of education held two sessions this week, and they were devoted entirely to the matter of engaging teachers for the ensuing year. The result, as far as they have gone, is that as superintendent they have engaged Mr. C. W. McLean, of the Whitehall school, at a salary of $1,200. H. S. Meyer, principal of the high school, has been re-engaged at a salary of $900. The entire present corps of teachers has also been re-engaged, with the exception of those employed in the grammar school, Mrs. S. Higgins and Miss C. L. Ross. This matter was laid over until the next meeting.

The trial of A. A. Finch and F. Gale before Squire Post, for the violation of the fish laws, came to a sudden close, Monday, by reason of the insufficiency of the evidence of the principal witness on the part of the People. It differed so materially from previous statements made. It is not the province of a local paper to be "trying" people, and the News has no opinion to express in this case. But we do hope that at an early date some guilty party or other will be arrested, tried, convicted and sentenced for depleting Black Lake of its stock of fish, by the use of nets. It is an open secret that the game and fish laws are being constantly violated in this locality, with a brazenness that is astounding.

Wheat 86 cents.

In excavating for the new vats at the C. & B. tannery, the surplus dirt is used to fill in the low lots on Pine street. The new chimney is gradually assuming colossal proportions.

Douglas Record: The government tug Hancock is fast on the sand at the mouth of the river. We hope she will remain there until the authorities dredge out a channel sufficient to do business.

A Swindle to the Laboring Class.

The silver question, which will be a prominent issue in the next campaign, is not by any means a new one. Twelve years ago in the last speech of his life, Zachariah Chandler presented the case with a force and brevity that cannot be excelled:

To-day the laboring man can take gold or silver or paper, as he chooses, for his day's labor. I am in favor of the dual standard. I am in favor of the silver dollar with 100 cents in it. I am in favor of an honest dollar anywhere you can find it, and I stand by an honest dollar. The paper dollar costs nothing; a silver costs the government $5 (now 75) cents. Now the very moment you commence issuing certificates of deposits freely to every man having silver bullion you banish gold from your circulating medium and make it an article of traffic and nothing else; and you have but a single standard and that a depreciated standard.

There is now paid out in these United States every day for labor alone $4,000,000. By compelling the substitution of the silver dollar alone you swindle the workingman out of $600,000 [now nearly $1,000,000] a day. The laboring-man who receives a dollar gets but 85 cents. The man who receives $10 a week gets $8.50—no more. The farmer who sells a horse, or the man who sells a load of lumber, or a load of wheat, or anything else amounting to $100, receives $85 and no more. You have but one single standard, and that the silver standard, which, having banished gold, is worth precisely the metal there is in it. Who is benefited by this substitution? Why, not a living mortal is benefited by it, except the bullion owner and the bullion speculator. I do not charge these men with being bribed to pass that law, because I have no proof of it; but I do say that the bullion owners and the bullion speculators can afford to pay $10,000,000 in bullion for the privilege of swindling the laboring men of the country out of 15 per cent of all their earnings.

The only change which the years have brought about is the further depreciation of silver, which tends to intensify all that Mr. Chandler said. If there was reason for fighting free coinage in 1879, when the silver was worth 85 cents to the dollar, how much more need is there to fight it now when the value has dropped to 76 cents! Added years have simply increased the swindle proposed by free coinage. And yet it was only by the aid of the solid vote of the Republican minority in the House, that the bill for free coinage, the other day, was laid on the table.

The States.

THE SIGNIFICATION OF THEIR RESPECTIVE NAMES.

Maine takes its name from the Province of Maine in France, and was so called as a compliment to the queen of Charles I., Henrietta, who was its owner.

New Hampshire takes its name from Hampshire, England. New Hampshire was originally called Laconia.

Vermont is French (Verd Mont), signifying Green Mountain.

Massachusetts is an Indian word, signifying "Country About the Great Hills."

Rhode Island gets its name because of its fancied resemblance to the island of Rhodes in the Mediterranean.

The real name of Connecticut is Quon-eh-ta-cut. It is a Mohegan word and means "long river."

New York was so named as a compliment to the Duke of York, whose brother, Charles II., granted him that territory. New Jersey was named for Sir George Carter, who was at the time Governor of the Island of Jersey in the British Channel.

Pennsylvania, as is generally known, takes its name from William Penn, the "Sylvania" part of it meaning woods. Literally it is "Penn's Woods."

Delaware derives its name from Thomas West, Lord de la Ware.

Maryland was named in honor of Henrietta Maria, queen of Charles I. Virginia got its name from Queen Elizabeth, the "Virgin queen."

The Carolinas were named after Charles (Carolus) II.

Florida gets its name from Kan-unas de Flores, or "Feast of the Flowers."

Alabama comes from a Greek word, and signifies "Land of Rest."

Louisiana was named in honor of Louis XVI. Mississippi is a Natchez word and means "Father of Waters."

Three or four Indian interpretations have been given for the word Arkansas, the best being that it signifies "smoky waters," the French prefix "Ark" meaning bow.

Tennessee, according to some writers, is from Tennessee, an Indian chief; others have it that it means "River of the Big Bend."

Kentucky does not mean "Dark and Bloody Ground," but is derived from the Indian word "Kain-tuk-ae," signifying "Land at the Head of the River."

Ohio has had several meanings fitted to it. Some say that it is a Suwanee word, meaning "The Beautiful River." Others refer to the Wyandotte word, Oheza, which signified "Something Great."

Indiana means land of Indians.

Illinois is supposed to be derived from an Indian word which was intended to refer to a superior class of men.

Wisconsin is an Indian word meaning "wild, rushing waters."

Missouri means "muddy waters."

Michigan is from an Indian word, meaning "great lake."

Iowa is the name of an Indian tribe, the Kiowas; the Kiowas were so called by the Illinois Indians because they were "across the rivers."

The name of California is a matter of much dispute. Some writers say that it first appeared in a Spanish romance of 1550, the heroine being an Amazonian named "California."

Colorado is a Spanish word applied to that portion of the Rocky Mountains on account of its many colored peaks.

Nebraska means shallow waters.

Nevada is a Spanish word signifying "snow-covered mountains."

Georgia had its name bestowed when it was a colony, in honor of George II. The Spanish missionaries of 1594 called the country now known as Texas "Mictetapah," and the people Mictetapahs. From this last word the name of Texas is supposed to have been derived.

Oregon is a Spanish word signifying "valley of wild thyme."

Dakota means "leagued" or "allied tribes."

Wyoming is the Indian word for "Big Plains."

Washington gets its name from our first President.

Montana means mountainous.

Idaho is a name that has never been satisfactorily accounted for.

HE'S A PATIENT ARTIST.

MAKES $50 BILLS WITH A PAINT BRUSH.

Omaha's Big Bridge Disabled—Artists Object to the High Tariff—Ringling Bros.' Circus in the Ditch—Another Alabama Lynching.

On the 17th the Senate authorized the Washington Schuetzenverein to erect at its own expense a colossal bust of Baron von Steuben, a general of the revolutionary army, in one of the public parks or reservations of Washington city. Mr. Chandler introduced a bill to authorize the registration of certain steamships as vessels of the United States, and it was referred to the Committee on Commerce. Senator Stanford, from the Public Buildings Committee, reported a bill appropriating $75,000 for the erection of a public building at Battle Creek, Mich. He also reported a bill increasing to $135,000 the limit of cost for the public building at Lansing, Mich., and appropriating $25,000. The naval appropriation bill occupied the balance of the time. The House devoted the entire session to the discussion of depredations on public timber.

PEN AND INK COUNTERFEIT.

A Bogus $50 Bill That Easily Passed Through a New York Bank.

A particularly fine counterfeit has been detected at the Sub-Treasury. It is the production of a pen and ink artist, who did his work so well that the bill passed through one of the city banks of New York without attracting suspicion. The counterfeit is of a $50 greenback of the series of 1883. The operator photographed a genuine bill, getting a light picture. Then he went over the photograph with ink, turning out a marvelously fine piece of work. The coloring is excellent, the design clearly reproduced, and the lettering far more accurate than is usually the case. The paper is good and has almost the right "feel." Of course one or two details were neglected, but they were not of a kind to attract attention. "Act of March 3, 1863," appearing over the vignette of Franklin on the genuine bill, was omitted on the counterfeit. "Engraved and printed at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing" is also missing, possibly because the artist did not care to burden his soul with unnecessary lies.

NATIONAL ART CONGRESS.

Meeting at Washington to Protest Against the High Tariff on Works of Art.

The first congress of the National Art Association began its session in the lecture room of the Columbian University, at Washington, Tuesday. The object of the present meeting is to protest against the high tariff on works of art. In the absence of Daniel Huntington, the President of the association, Jeff Chandler presided. The delegates were welcomed to Washington by Dr. Willing, President of the Columbian University. Private Secretary Halford represented the President and Mrs. Harrison, and briefly expressed their regret at not being present. Senator Wolcott of Colorado made a brief but solicitous address, in which he promised to labor not only for the removal of the duty on art but also for the removal of "alleged" art.

CIRCUS TRAIN DITCHED.

Four Cars and an Engine Go Through a Trestle Near Concordia, Kan.

The first section of a train on the Missouri Pacific Road, carrying part of Ringling Bros.' circus, went through a trestle about midway between Concordia and Ames, Kan. Two of the circus employees, names unknown, were instantly killed. None of the train employees were seriously injured. The locomotive passed over the trestle, but four cars crashed through, dragging the engine backward and piling all in a heap at the bottom of the ravine. The cars were loaded with horses, many of which were killed. The trestle was recently examined and thought to be all right. It is supposed the recent heavy rains had undermined the foundation.

THREE NEGROES LYNCHED.

They Try to Rob an Alabama Farmer and Are Punished by a Mob. Three negroes were lynched at Childersburg, Ala., Monday morning. They tried to rob D. C. Bryant, a farmer; going into his wife's bedroom they beat her cruelly about the head. The three men were pursued, found in a swamp and put in a Childersburg lockup. They were taken out by a mob and hanged.

Naturalizing Italians by Fraud.

The New York Herald says: Chief Supervisor of Federal Elections John L. Davenport caused an arrest in Mount Vernon on Saturday which brought to light a scheme whereby a number of Italians had already secured and others were about to secure false naturalization papers. The man arrested was William J. Patterson. He admits that he was engaged to take Italians from Mount Vernon to White Plains and procure naturalization papers for them. He was to receive $2 for each one. Papers have been given to 100 Italians the last four weeks, fourteen of which have been known to have been procured through fraud.

Delaware for Grover.

The Delaware Democratic State Convention was one of the largest and most enthusiastic ever held in the State. The delegation is unimpaired, but strongly favors Cleveland. The names of Bayard, Gray, and Cleveland caused great applause in the convention.

Cut Off by Floods.

The east approach of the Union Pacific bridge over the Missouri River at Omaha gave way Tuesday night, and, as a result, a thirty-foot gap precludes all idea of using the bridge for some time.

Drowned in the Mine.

Dispatches from Fuenfkirchen in Hungary say that a waterspout burst over the mines near that town and flooded them, and that between 80 and 100 miners, if not more, have been drowned.

Thieves and Officers Fight.

Guthrie (O. T.) dispatch: The mail carrier from Marshal brings news of a battle between United States deputy marshals and horse thieves in the Sac and Fox country, in which two of the thieves and one of the deputies were killed. These are the thieves who killed William Stormer, of Orlando, a week ago.

Murdered by Tramps.

At Lima, Ohio, three tramps assaulted, with intent to rob, George Hentze as he was walking along a railroad track. He tried to fight them off, when one of the trio stabbed him to the heart.

PRINTERS' HOME DEDICATED.

Thousands of Persons Witness the Ceremony.

At Colorado Springs, Colo., 5,000 feet above the turbid bosom of Lake Michigan and yet within the shadow of the great mountain ranges, whose snow-tipped crests seem to touch the western sky, a Senator of the United States, a Bishop of the Episcopal Church, and a journeyman printer stood Thursday noon upon a platform and amid buzzes from thousands of throats joined hands in response to one sentiment, "The right of union for self-protection is given of God." The Senator was Jacob H. Gallinger, of New Hampshire, who, at 16 years of age, was a full-fledged master of the art preservative; the Bishop was the venerable W. E. McLaren, of Chicago, who also, in his early days, served time at the case; and the journeyman, John P. McKenna, of New York, Vice President of the International Typographical Union. The event which gave occasion for their manifestation of fraternity, and which brought together representative printers and publishers from nearly every commonwealth of the land, was the dedication of that institution—which owes its existence to the contribution of every union type in the United States and the welcome aid of a couple of philanthropic Philadelphians—a home for union printers.

UNION PRINTERS' HOME

PLOTTED TO KILL THE CZAR.

His Palace Undermined and the Channel Filled with Explosives.

A week ago two French detectives arrived at the palace of the Czar of Russia and began a careful investigation of the place, one in the disguise of a coachman and the other in that of an assistant. Two days after their arrival they reported that the whole palace had been found to be undermined, that the underground channel beneath the Czar's sleeping-room was already half filled with explosives and that the nihilists back of the plot would have started the explosion doubtless the next time the Czar slept at the palace had they not been frightened away by the signs of discovery of their plot. This plot was known in a general way to exist, yet the czar's police were unable to discover its details or even to fix its location definitely. The cellars and grounds of the Gatchina palace were carefully examined and upon finding nothing the detectives decided that the conspirators had not yet begun to act. The Paris detectives were then summoned.

MEMPHIS BRIDGE OPENED.

Tennessee and Arkansas Clasp Hands Across the Mississippi.

At noon, Thursday, with impressive ceremonies, the great steel bridge across the Mississippi River at Memphis, Tenn., was formally declared opened for traffic. All day Wednesday railroads and steamboats emptied people into Memphis, and the crowd of visitors which thronged the city and congregated about the great bridge to witness the ceremonies was estimated at 30,000. Many eminent statesmen and prominent railroad men were among the city's guests. The orator of the day was Senator Voorhees, of Indiana.

CRASHED THROUGH A BRIDGE.

Electric Cars Fall in Toledo, Resulting in the Death of a Motor Man.

Two electric cars crashed through the Lake Shore bridge, on St. Clair street, at Toledo, Ohio. The first car broke down a short distance away from the bridge and was being pushed into the city. When the bridge collapsed the floor rested upon a freight car standing on the tracks underneath. Frank Manet, the motor man on the rear car, was caught between the two and his life crushed out. Passengers escaped injury.

They Are for Grover.

The New Hampshire Democrats met in State Convention at Concord and chose delegates to Chicago. The concluding plank reads as follows: "We recognize in Grover Cleveland a great leader in tariff reform, who, with an energy that never faltered, with a directness that never swerved, with a sublime faith that never faltered, led the way through the reverses in 1888 to an overwhelming victory in 1890, and under whose continued leadership there will be achieved a crowning triumph in 1892."

Conductor and Passenger in a Ravine.

J. D. Miller, conductor on the west-bound train of the Texas and Pacific Road, ordered an unknown negro, who refused to pay his fare, from the train. In the tussle which followed, both men fell from the moving train and into a ravine near the side of the track. The train was backed up and Miller was found unconscious. He had been robbed by the negro, who had made his escape. Miller is now at the point of death, due to a fracture of the skull.

Tried to Cremate Himself.

The negro McMillen, now in jail at Houston, Texas, and suspected of being the party who committed the terrible outrage last winter in Sedalia, Mo., attempted to commit suicide by cremation. He took the straw from his mattress, piled it in his cell, fired it with a match, and threw himself into the blaze. He was badly burned about the neck and head. He made a desperate resistance when the jailer attempted to extinguish the flames.

Bloody Duel in Frankfort.

In a street fight at Frankfort, Ky., between John T. Johnson and Charles P. Owens, the latter was mortally wounded, the former shot twice, and three bystanders severely hurt. Owens said that Johnson had been too intimate with his (Owens') wife, and had ruined his family and destroyed his happiness for life. He said Johnson fired first, and he (Owens) fired six shots, but was unable to kill Johnson.

Snowstorm in Indiana.

A blustering snowstorm occurred north of Crawfordsville, Ind., Friday morning, which lasted about fifteen minutes, when a drizzling rain began. An area of perhaps ten miles was covered to a depth of an inch with snow.

Death Smote Him in Church.

Rev. William F. Speake, pastor of the Fourth Street Methodist Episcopal Church, Washington, was stricken with heart failure while addressing the Sunday-school and died a few minutes afterward.

SWEEP BY NEW FLOODS.

BREAK IN THE LEVEE AT BONNET CARRE.

Lively Times in Venezuela—The Insurgents Victorious—Bollivar Is Fallen—Municipalities of a Frenchman to Kansas Odd-fellows—Invalids Burned to Death.

Had Turned to Stone.

Stephen Powers, according to an Angola, Ind., dispatch, was in life a unique character and in death he is still a marvel. While alive he was the champion whisky-drinker of the State. No amount of it would intoxicate him. Finally whisky did not satisfy him, and for years before his death he bought Fowler's solution of arsenic by the dozen bottles and drank the stuff in large quantities. He lived to a very old age and after death was buried on his farm. A few days ago his family concluded to remove his remains. On opening the grave it was found that the body had not decayed a particle and had literally turned to stone.

BAD CREVASSE IN LOUISIANA.

Break 100 Feet Wide in the Levee at Bonnet Carre—St. Louis Safe.

A break has occurred in the levee at Bonnet Carre, on the east bank of the Mississippi River, eighteen miles above New Orleans. The break is over one hundred feet wide and five feet deep. The water is pouring through the crevasse at a tremendous rate. The levee is on the Gypsy plantation, owned by John Dymond. The Mississippi Valley Railroad tracks run within two miles of the crevasse, and the Illinois Central Railroad tracks are about six miles distant. At last accounts the crevasse was over 200 feet wide and 5 feet deep and was washing badly. The Missouri River has reached its height at Kansas City and Hermann, Mo., and is now slowly falling. The crest of the flood is about twenty miles from the mouth of the Missouri River and is slowly making its way toward St. Louis. All the levees and embankments between St. Louis and the mouth of the Missouri are intact, and unless an unexpected strain occurs will be able to withstand the rush of the flood. Relief boats are busily engaged in rescuing people from islands that are covered with water and carrying them to places of safety.

BOLIVAR IS TAKEN.

The Venezuelan City Captured by the Rebels Fighting Palaco.

Confirmation of the capture of the city of Bolivar by the insurgents and news of the death of the commander of the government forces, Gen. Santiago Rodil, has been received from Maracaibo, Venezuela. Besides the killing of Gen. Rodil, Gen. Lucio Espinoza, the government's chief in the Alto Orinoco, was made prisoner at Bolivar. He was in command of the town while Rodil was out on the plantations forcing the farm hands into Palaco's army. The rebel chieftain, Gonzales Gil, rode into Bolivar at the head of a column of cavalry nearly sixteen hundred strong. Espinoza made as good a defense as he could, but after a light struggle with General Gil he surrendered, as did 200 troops under him. The men immediately enrolled themselves under the insurgent banner. A few were killed or wounded on both sides. One of Rodil's guard rode into the town with the General's head on a saber. General Gil ordered the head and body interred. General Gil now occupies Bolivar with nearly 2,500 well-armed men. The city of Bolivar is the key to Crespo's stronghold, the Alta Orinoco.

GIFT TO KANSAS ODD-FELLOWS.

Property Worth $200,000 to Found an Orphan's Home Donated by a Frenchman.

E. N. Deboisieres, a wealthy Frenchman, who came to this country fifteen years ago, has deeded over 3,000 acres of land, highly improved and stocked with 500 head of fine cattle and horses, to the Odd-Fellows' lodge of Kansas, to be converted into a home for orphan children of Odd-Fellows. The gift is worth $200,000. The donor will sail for France in a few days, where he has immense possessions. He is 83 years old. At New York, John D. Rockefeller has donated $50,000 to the endowment fund of the Tabernacle Church in Second avenue in fulfillment of a promise made last Thanksgiving Day to Rev. Dr. Daniel C. Potter, the pastor. According to the provisions of the deed the interest derived from this fund is to be applied to the general expenses of the church for the next ten years, and during the subsequent ten years the proceeds will be applied to the uses of the church or for other purposes.

FATAL FIRE AT BROOKLYN.

Warner's Institute Burned and Two Lives Believed to Have Been Lost.

Warner's Institute, Broadway and Wiloughby avenue, Brooklyn, was destroyed by fire. The building had been recently fitted up by the Zoeller Mannerchor, which owns the premises. The loss will reach $150,000. Besides the singing society there were located in the building several stores and a branch of the Postoffice. The mail matter, including two large Irish and German mails, was nearly all destroyed. Two young men named Carl Nedzu and John Kutsy, employed in the Institute Building, are missing, and it is believed they were burned to death. The origin of the fire is unknown.

WRECKED BY A WINDSTORM.

Arapahoe, the New Oklahoma Town, Practically Demolished.

A terrific windstorm swept over the new counties in the western part of Oklahoma Territory, Thursday. The tents and small buildings in the town of Arapahoe were all demolished. The temporary court house was wrecked, and the papers and records scattered all over the country. The tent in which the newspaper was published was carried entirely away and the outfit wrecked. Near the town of Frisco five houses were totally destroyed. Several persons were badly injured.

Are a Unit for Boies.

Horace Boies is the man who Iowa Democrats think can carry the party's banner to victory in the national campaign this year. Other names of great Democratic leaders were cheered by the delegates in the State convention which was held at Council Bluffs Wednesday, but none evoked such enthusiasm as did that of the Chief Executive of the Hawkeye State. He is Iowa's favorite son.

Diphtheria Epidemic in Erie.

At Erie, Pa., thirty-two houses are placarded for diphtheria, a large proportion of cases proving fatal. During an outbreak in January the school board refused to close the schools at the request of Health Officer Woods. The court will take action on a motion for a mandamus closing the public schools for three weeks. Strict quarantine of the infected houses is ordered.

Missouri for Grover.

The Missouri State Democratic Convention, at Sedalia, elected a solid delegation for Cleveland.

DEATH BEFORE STARVATION.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams Attempt Suicide to Escape Poverty.

The identification of the body of John Williams by his wife at the morgue in St. Louis, brought to light a pathetic story of suicide as a release from poverty. Mr. and Mrs. Williams went to St. Louis from Warrensburg, Mo., where they had been married two years ago. Williams secured work, but was discharged about a month ago and had not been able to obtain employment since. The couple saw starvation staring them in the face and they determined to drown themselves. They selected different points on the river to accomplish their purpose. Mrs. Williams threw herself into the water, but was rescued by boatmen. Again she tried to kill herself in the same way, and again was rescued. She went to the morgue in search of her husband and found his body on a slab. She told her story to the attendants and then went away. It is believed that she has at last succeeded in ending her life.

CAPITOL IN SANTA FE BURNED.

The Handsome Structure Which Cost $250,000 Is Destroyed.

At 8 o'clock Thursday evening fire was seen issuing from the roof of the attic near the base of the south dome of New Mexico's magnificent capitol building at Santa Fe. Citizens at once drew up the fire hose to the spot, but only to find that the water had been shut off from the building and grounds, and it at once became evident that the building was doomed. All hands at once stripped the building of furniture, carpets, law library, and every movable article on the two lower floors. The vaults are uninjured. Owing to a quarrel in the late Legislature no money was appropriated to pay for the insurance, and the policies were allowed to expire. The building was valued at $250,000, and is a total loss.

SMALLPOX EN ROUTE TO NEBRASKA.

Second Batch of Infected Russians Likely to Be Quarantined.

Nebraska State and municipal authorities received notification that another train of Russians from the smallpox-infected ship Westmoreland had left New York destined to Nebraska points. The first invoice of passengers on that vessel settled in and around Hastings, and shortly after their arrival numerous mild cases of smallpox appeared. The State Board of Health has been apprised of the expected second arrival, and will probably establish a quarantine.

Congress of Women.

Progressive womanhood, its exponents from all parts of the United States, linked arms the other day at Central Music Hall in Chicago, and made one strong, irresistible move toward the elevation and advancement of woman. Perhaps never before have the 20,000 women, members of the hundreds of progressive women's clubs, been so strongly represented by women whose names are known throughout the country as those of women who have devoted their time to the task of elevating women.

Kansas Crop Outlook.

It is said that the reports of the Government on Kansas crops are undoubtedly 2 per cent too low and that everywhere in the State there are better prospects for a good crop than at this time last year. The farmers are plowing everywhere and no damage has been done to the corn or wheat except in a few places where the ground has been overflooded and remained under water. The general average of the entire State is better than last year.

Taylor Goes to Prison.

At Boston, James Taylor, the man with sixty wives, and who, under the name of Turner, married a Chicago woman, was sentenced to three years in the State prison on one count. If he receives the same treatment at the hands of his other wives he will be an old man when he settles up the last account with the law. After serving this sentence he will be turned over to the police of New York.

Negro Lynched in Little Rock.

The first mob that was formed to lynch a culprit in the history of Little Rock met at the county jail and hanged Henry James, a negro who assaulted the 5-year-old stepdaughter of Mr. Charles Johnston. The mob numbered 500, among whom were some of Little Rock's best-known citizens.

England Will Accept!

Right Hon. George J. Goschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced to a member of a bimetallic deputation that waited upon him in London that England would accept the invitation of the United States to take part in an international conference to discuss the silver question.

Oldest Ex-Speaker.

Robert C. Winthrop, the oldest ex-Speaker of Congress, was 83 years old Friday, and has received many congratulations. Mr. Winthrop enjoys the distinction of having known personally every President of the United States except Washington and Jefferson.

DOINGS OF CONGRESS.

MEASURES CONSIDERED AND ACTED UPON.

At the Nation's Capital—What Is Being Done by the Senate and House—Old Matters Disposed Of and New Ones Considered.

The Senate and House.

In the House, the 11th, the appropriation of $500,000 for the purchase of a site and commencement of a new building for a new mint at Philadelphia, was struck from the sundry civil bill. This was done upon motion of Mr. Holman. The Vice President, having gone to New York to act as pallbearer at the funeral of the late Mr. Astor, his chair was occupied by Mr. Manderson, President pro tem., who laid before the Senate the resolution of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church assembled at Omaha, Neb. (representing 2,500,000 members and 10,000,000 adherents), heartily approving the World's Fair appropriation bill, "providing expressly that it be conditioned on closing the Exposition on Sunday." The following bills were passed: House bill to provide for a term of the United States Circuit and District Court at Evanson, Mo. House bill authorizing the construction of a wagon and motor bridge over the Missouri River at St. Charles, Mo. Appropriating $100,000 for a public building at Pierre, S. D. The presiding officer laid before the Senate a message from the President of the United States transmitting the seventh annual report of the Commissioner of Labor. After an executive session the Senate adjourned. In the House, the 12th, a resolution for the investigation of the Pinkerton agency was adopted after a sharp debate, the conference report on the bill for the sale of the Klamath River Indian Reservation was also adopted. The House then went into committee of the whole (Mr. Lester of Georgia in the chair) on the sundry civil appropriation bill. Among the bills introduced in the Senate and referred were the following: Authorizing the President to proclaim a general holiday, commemorating the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America, Oct. 12, 1492; to encourage American shipbuilding, extending to the steamship China the same privileges as have been extended to the City of New York; The China is a steamship of 5,000 tons, built in Glasgow in 1880. She plies between San Francisco and China, on the Pacific Mail line, but flies the British flag. The message of the President on the subject of an international conference on bimetalism and the naval appropriation bill consumed the rest of the time.

In the Senate, the 13th, the river and harbor bill was reported back from the Committee on Commerce with amendments. The consideration of the naval bill was resumed. Mr. McPherson offered an amendment appropriating $250,000 toward the construction of a dry dock at Algiers, Louisiana. It was rejected. Mr. McPherson, from the Naval Committee, offered an amendment to the Senate amendment providing for three harbor defense double turret ships of the monitor type—instead of one ship. Mr. Gorman spoke at length on lines of economy, but not against enlarging the navy. After further debate and without action on Mr. McPherson's amendment the Senate adjourned. In the House, the 13th, the claim bill again came to the fore on a report from the committee of the whole referring the claim to the Court of Claims for final adjudication. To this substitute there was pending an amendment providing that the reference should be merely for inquiry, and report to Congress. The amendment was lost.

While the sundry civil bill was under discussion, the 16th, the free silver question came to the front again in the shape of an amendment offered by Bartine, of Nevada, but a point of order was made against it and the matter went over for the present without a decision. After the approval of the journal the Speaker laid before the House a communication from Vice President Morton announcing the death of Senator Harbort and inviting the House to attend in a body the funeral ceremonies to be held in the Senate chamber. When the committee resumed its session Mr. Culbertson, of Texas, moved to strike out the appropriation of $25,000 for detecting persons guilty of violation of internal revenue laws. Agreed to. The clause for the recoinage, release and transportation of minor coins having been reached, Mr. Tracey of New York made a point of order against it. He also raised a point of order against a free silver amendment offered by Mr. Bartine of Nevada. Both points went over for the present without decision. The Senate did no business.

The large amount fixed for a license, also joined in the petition that the action taken by the council thereon be reconsidered and the amount of license be fixed at one hundred dollars, and further asked that the council act on said petition as soon as they could make it amenable.—The communication of Mr. Self was directed to the committee on streets and bridges and attached to the petition therein referred to and laid upon the table.

PITTPAT AND TIPPTOE.

All day long they come and go—
Pittypat and Tipptoe;
Footprints up and down the hall,
Playthings scattered on the floor,
Finger-marks along the wall
Tell-tale streaks upon the door—
By these presents you shall know
Pittypat and Tipptoe.

How they riot at their play!
And, a dozen times a day,
In they troop demanding bread—
Only buttered bread will do,
And that butter must be spread
Inches thick with sugar, too!
Never yet have I said: "No,
Pittypat and Tipptoe!"

Sometimes there are griefs to soothe—
Sometimes ruffled brows to smooth;
For—I much regret to say—
Tipptoe and Pittypat
Sometimes interrupt their play
With an interminable spat;
Fie! oh, fie! to quarrel so,
Pittypat and Tipptoe!

Oh, the thousand worrying things
Every day recurrent brings!
Hands to scrub and hair to brush,
Search for playthings gone amiss,
Many a murmuring to hush,
Many a little bump to kiss;
Life's indeed a fleeting show,
Pittypat and Tipptoe!

And when day is at an end,
There are little duds to mend;
Little frocks are strangely torn
Little shoes great holes reveal,
Little hose, but one day worn,
Rudely yawn at too or heel!
Who but you could work such woo,
Pittypat and Tipptoe!

But when comes this thought to me
"Some there are that childless be,"
Stealing to their little beds,
With a love I cannot speak,
Tenderly I stroke their heads,
Fondly kiss each velvet cheek,
God help those who do not know
A Pittypat or Tipptoe!

On the floor, along the hall
Rudely traced upon the wall,
There are proofs in every kind
Of the havoc they have wrought,
And upon my heart you'd find
Just such trade-marks, if you sought.
Oh, how glad I am 'tis so,
Pittypat and Tipptoe!

SARAH.

BY LUCY C. LILLIE.

SARAH MOLYNEUX crossed the hall of her aunt's house in Chelster and stood irresolutely for a moment at the head of the old-fashioned staircase. Her hand moved a little nervously on the balustrade, and the line between her delicate dark brows deepened.

"If it were only over with—or needn't be at all," she reflected, "but there was no way to avoid the unpleasant task ahead of her, and accordingly Sarah passed down the stairs and into the square parlor overlooking the garden. In about half an hour old Mrs. Thorpe in her room upstairs heard the front door close, and a quick step go down the garden pathway. Presently Sarah came back. The old lady was propped up in bed and turned a pair of very bright, clear eyes upon her niece as she entered the room.

"Well," Mrs. Thorpe exclaimed with impatience. "Sit right down and tell me all about it. And don't oblige me to ask too many questions. You know how I hate to have to wring anything out of you."

Sarah laughed. "I'll do my best, Aunt Polly," she answered, sitting down in the window and looking with gentle indulgence at the old lady. "I suppose I must begin at the beginning. I found Mr. Morison, of course, in the parlor and he fairly jumped at the business question."

"Humph, what'd he say?"

"Said that he would not think of disturbing you while you were ill but that it was very important for him to know when he could take possession of the house. He intends putting up the factory at once, he says. He observed how fond we were of the old house and all that, but of course we could hardly expect him to be sentimental in a business matter."

"Did he talk like that right to your face, Sarah Molyneux?"

"Yes, Aunt—I can't say—well it didn't sound quite so bold; but those were his words."

"Who does he favor in looks—the Turners, I guess," Mrs. Thorpe leaned back and closed her eyes a moment, visions of the high cheek bones and prominent noses of the Turners floating before her. Sarah thought of them too, sharply in contrast with the looks of her recent guest.

"He's not a bit like the Turners," she said, presently. "I don't know the Morisons much," she added. "Let me see—he is not very tall—rather slight but looks strong, and has a clean-shaven dark face."

"Handsome?" Mrs. Thorpe's eyes opened for an instant.

"Oh, no—not at all—oh no, not the least bit handsome; but he has a quick, bright sort of look."

"So he's going to put up a factory—dear, dear—I did think—but well no—of course the property's his since your Uncle Ezra left it to him by will—I never thought Ezra'd do it. Always took for granted he meant it should be mine outright, and—after letting me live here forty years."

"I said something of the kind to Mr. Morison. He's coming back this evening."

"What for; he isn't going to build to-night, is he?"

"Oh, no. He wants to see the garden very particularly."

"Well, you make it clear I want the plants."

When the objectionable guest had paid his second visit, Sarah came back to her aunt's room looking very much discouraged.

"Well, what now?" demanded the old lady with scorn.

"He says we can't have the garden disturbed, Aunt Polly," said Sarah, sitting down dejectedly. "I took him down to the arbor, and we had a very nice talk at first. I really almost liked him. We began about country life, and he told me how much he had longed for a real country home—a place something like this, he said—then he asked who took care of the garden, and I told him I was your gardener, and how much we both loved the flowers. I showed him the tree planted when I was a baby, and then the rosebush for my tenth birthday; and he said that he should think we'd hate to leave it all—then I explained you wanted the plants; but he said oh, no! it was all part of the property."

"Turner straight through and through," declared the old lady. "Grasping all they can get. I will have the plants, though I guess Ezra's will had nothing to say to them."

"I could scarcely be civil after that," pursued Sarah, her face flushing in the dusk. "I changed the subject, and asked him how nearly he was related to the Turners; but he said it was very distant. He told me where he lived as a boy. It seems his father had a paper in some country village—Saul—I think he called it, and he was a very visionary, unpractical, enthusiastic kind of man. I guess he didn't provide much for the family. Anyway Mr. Morison says he started out young in life to carve his own future, and he has been quite successful—only he intends to be thoroughly so he says, if possible."

"By way of my garden. Humph!"

"He says he enjoys obstacles. He likes something to conquer. I told him I had no fancy for battlefields; he said a skirmish was as good as success to him. Oh, Aunt, by the way, do I look like the Turners?"

"Well some," said the old lady, reluctantly. Sarah crossed the room, and in the faint light regarded her face attentively in the long narrow mirror. It was a thin, clear-cut face, rather shadowy as to what might or might not be its owner's strong or weak points; the face of a girl to whom events or emergencies were unknown. Life had written almost nothing upon it that gave it charm, and the eyes were a very pretty hazel with black lashes and delicate brows.

"The Hatfield Turners," pursued the old lady, as Sarah sat down again. "You do look some like them. Why?"

"Oh, Mr. Morison said I had a Turner look," the girl answered. "He tried to make out we are cousins."

"Well you are—twice removed. His mother's your cousin, I think."

"I must ask him. He'll be back in the morning, he says."

"Well, I declare to gracious the man means to force me out of this bed, I believe. Sarah, you must speak up and not let him impose upon you."

About eleven o'clock the next morning very unusual sounds floated up to the old lady from the parlor where Mr. Morison was again "interviewing" Sarah. Some one was playing on the old piano; then a man's voice, a clear fine tenor, could be heard. The song was one the old lady remembered in her youth—"Phyllis is my only love"—and her withered cheek flushed with pleasure. "Sarah," she said, directly her niece appeared, "did you ask that young man to sing? I want you should inquire if he knows another piece like that."

Sarah's eyes were very soft and bright.

"Aunt," she said, eagerly, "would it look bold if I sang a duet with Mr. Morison? He's coming back this afternoon."

"What'll you sing? You don't know what you're talking about, Sarah."

"Does he think the piano's his?" demanded the old lady with a sudden return of severity. Sarah looked miserable.

"He says it is, Aunt," she admitted. "There was an ominous silence; then Mrs. Thorpe closed her eyes again."

"Well, it was Ezra's," she admitted. "It was with mingled feelings that she listened that afternoon to the singing from below. Love of music compelled her to enjoy keenly the way in which Sarah and the audacious Mr. Morison sang. "I would that my love" and "Oh, wert thou in the cauld blast." While resentment against what she felt an unjust will depriving her and her niece of her cherished home, made her consider everything done or said by Mr. Morison objectionable, yet somehow she found herself looking forward eagerly to her niece's next report of their unbidden guest.

"He is going to be married soon, Aunt Polly," Sarah related. "Perhaps that is why he is in such a hurry about the house. He's been telling me about the young lady."

"Well, upon my soul. Seems to me he's very free with his confidences. Married? What'd he say about her?"

"Oh, I don't know exactly," said Sarah; "he said she was the kind of girl I'd get along quickly with; it seems, ever so long ago, he made up his mind never to marry any one but her."

"Well, and were there any of those obstacles he talks about?" sniffed the old lady.

"Oh, yes. But he says there's quite a touch of romance in the whole affair. He's a very—well, masterful sort of person, Aunt. I can quite understand what he means when he says he enjoys overcoming difficulties. He isn't the sort of person any one could trifle with easily."

"I guess I will when I get around. What with the garden and the piano and the dear knows what all—I'll be grateful if he leaves us the clothes to our backs. What else'd you talk about?"

"Oh, a great many things. Books some. He's fond of German—and, oh, I meant to tell you, he's coming tomorrow morning and going to read a little German with me."

"Well, Sarah, you just see here. Let that young man know you've something to do besides fool around with him. I know; he wants to force me up. I'll see Dr. Barker, I guess, before that Tom Morison gets me out of the house."

"Oh, Aunt! It's just because he wants, he says, to familiarize himself with the place."

"Well he's got all the time there is after we're gone. I want you should be very distant with him—and, Sarah, I guess you'd better not begin any German readings."

During Mr. Morison's next visit Sarah appeared in her aunt's room with a very anxious expression.

"Aunt Polly," she said, with an effort at composure, "Mr. Morison's brought the German books, and I don't know what to say about it—I—"

"Well, go on," said the old lady,

"I suppose you're bent on it any way, and perhaps he'll help you some."

She lay very still when she was alone, sometimes with her eyes open, but generally keeping them closed, as pictures from the past, and visions of what might be ahead of her, floated through her brain; and the peculiar cruelty of her brother's will smote her heart afresh. When she had been left a widow forty years ago, Ezra Turner had promptly bade her stay on in the house which had seen the happy years of her married life, and which had been endeared to her by a hundred different associations; when the sorrows it had witnessed consecrated the place almost as tenderly as its periods of joy, while from the time she had brought her little orphan niece Sarah home, a new interest was given her life, yet one inseparably bound up with the old mansion. Ezra's will fell like a thunderbolt upon the old lady and her niece. Indeed, there was little question but that it caused the weak turn which confined her to her room; and as she lay there now, faintly conscious of the voices from below, something like a wish never to leave the old home save for a final resting-place brought a hot moisture into her eyes.

It seemed a long time before Mr. Morison went away. When the door had closed upon him at last Mrs. Thorpe, alert for every sound, heard Sarah lingering on the stairs. Presently the girl appeared. Her cheeks were scarlet.

"Well," demanded the old lady, "what now?—what new thing's he going to claim?"

Sarah's color now swept all her face. "Oh, Aunt Polly," she said, "it's all as queer as quack can be. Oh, if you'll only let me. Please—oh, Aunt Polly, it seems Mr. Morison made his mind up right away, the very first day, he says—and he never wanted anything so much before—"

"Sarah Molyneux," said the old lady, sitting upright, "what ails you? Speak English."

"Oh, he's asked me to marry him, Aunt Polly," said Sarah; "that's it; and he says I mustn't say no—he made all that up about going to be married—or rather, he says he was bound to make me say yes."

Mrs. Thorpe remained rigid in the same attitude for a moment without speaking. Sarah flushed and paled and flushed again.

"What'd you tell him?" at last demanded the old lady, with an accent of fine scorn. She was very proud of Sarah's conquest. She knew all about young Morison, and was well aware how highly he was esteemed.

"Oh—he says it's settled," observed Sarah; "and of course—he was only going on, he says, to try me about the factory and the garden and the piano; he says, bless your heart he wouldn't take a thing belonging to you more'n he'd steal."

"Only—my girl," said Mrs. Thorpe, grimly. But when Sarah bent to kiss her there was the kind of tenderness in the old woman's embrace that the girl remembered only when she was a little child.—Independent.

The Coldness of Lake Superior.

Lake Superior is a capricious monster, demanding skilled seamanship and the use of powerful and staunch boats, the majority of which are comparable with the vessels in our Atlantic coasting trade. The lake is a veritable womb of storms. They develop quickly there, and even more speedily the water takes on a furious character. It is always cold, and the atmosphere above and far around it is kept cool all summer. I have been told, but cannot verify the statement, that the temperature of the water in the open lake never rises above 46 degrees Fahrenheit. As a rule, the men who sail upon it cannot swim. The lake offers no inducement to learn the art, and alas! those who are expert swimmers could not keep alive for any great length of time in the icy water. This I was making inquiries upon when I found, as one almost always does, some who disputed what the majority agreed upon. I even found an old gentleman, a professional man of beyond seventy years of age, who said that for several years he had visited the lake each summer-time, and that he had made it a practice to bathe in its waters nearly every day. It was chilly, he admitted, and he did not stay in very long. But many sailors, among them some ship and steamship captains, confirmed my belief that few Lake Superior seamen have learned to swim, and that the coldness of the water quickly numbs those who fall into it. I asked one captain how long he supposed a man might bathe for life, or cling to a spar in the lake. He answered, very sensibly, it seemed to me, that some men could endure the cold longer than others, and that the more flesh and fat a man possessed, the longer he could keep alive. "But," he added, "the only man I ever saw fall overboard went down like a shot before we could get to him. I always supposed he took a cramp."

The bodies of the drowned are said not to rise to the surface. They are refrigerated, and the decomposition which causes the ascent of human bodies in other waters does not take place. If one interesting contribution to my notes is true, and there be depths to which fishes do not descend, it is possible that many a hapless sailor-man and voyager lies as he died, a century back perhaps, and will ever thus remain, lifelike and natural, under the darkening veil of those emerald depths.—[Harper's Magazine.

"We'll Leave It to Webster."

"I was arguing with an Englishman the other day," said a New Yorker recently, "over the pronunciation of a word, and finally I said, 'We'll leave it to Webster.' 'What if you do?' cried the Englishman, 'that's only one man's opinion. I've heard that you Americans refer everything to a dictionary.' Surprised I asked what was the custom in England, and he told me that Oxford and Cambridge were the accepted referees. Neither seat of learning takes precedence of the other, but over all other authorities, and if two men can prove respectively their claimed pronunciations to be sanctioned by two universities, both are right."—[New York Times.

DR. TALMAGE'S SERMON.

A DISCOURSE ON THE DUMB DEVIL.

He illustrates the Duty Incumbent Upon Christians of Embracing Every Opportunity That Offers to Do Good and Advance the Cause of Christ.

At the Tabernacle.

In this sermon Rev. Dr. Talmage illustrated, in potent and convincing language, the duty incumbent upon Christians of embracing every opportunity that offers in this life to do good and to advance the cause of the Kingdom of Christ by a bold acknowledgment of their principles before men. The text selected was, Mark ix, 25, "Thou dumb and deaf spirit, I charge thee, come out of him."

Here was a case of great domestic anguish. The son of the household was possessed of an evil spirit which, among other things, paralyzed his tongue and made him speechless. When the influence was on the patient he could not say a word—articulation was impossible. The spirit that captured this member of the household was a dumb spirit—so called by Christ—a spirit abroad to do evil and as lively and potent as in New Testament times. Yet in all the realms of sermonology I cannot find a discourse concerning this dumb devil which Christ charged upon my text, saying, "Come out of him."

There has been much destructive superstition abroad in the world concerning possession by evil spirits. Under the form of belief in witchcraft this delusion swept the continents. Persons were supposed to be possessed with some evil spirit which made them able to do destroy others. In the sixteenth century in Geneva 1,500 persons were burned to death as witches. Under one judge in Lorraine 900 persons were burned to death as witches. In one neighborhood of France 1,000 persons were burned. In two centuries 200,000 persons were slain as witches. So mighty was the delusion that it included among its victims some of the greatest intellects of all time, such as Chief Justice Matthew Hale and Sir Edward Coke, and such renowned ministers of religion as Cotton Mather, one of whose books, Benjamin Franklin said, shaped his life—and Richard Baxter and Archbishop Cranmer and Martin Luther, and among writers and philosophers, Lord Bacon. That belief, which has become the laughing stock of all sensible people, counted its disciples among the wisest and best people of Sweden, Germany, England, France, Spain and New England. But while we reject witchcraft any man who believes the Bible must believe that there are diabolical agencies abroad in the world. While there are ministering spirits to bless there are infernal spirits to hinder, to poison and destroy. Christ was speaking to a spiritual existence when, standing before the afflicted one of the text, he said, "Thou dumb and deaf spirit, come out of him."

Against this dumb devil of the text, I put you on your guard. Do not think that this agent of evil has put his blight on those who, by omission of the vocal organs, have had the golden gates of speech bolted and barred. Among those who have never spoken a word are the most gracious and lonely and talented souls that were ever incarnated. The chaplains of the asylums for the dumb can tell you enchanting stories of those, who never called the name of father or mother or child, and many of the most devout and prayerful souls will never in this world speak the name of God or Christ. Many a deaf mute have I seen with the angel of intelligence seated at the window of the eye, who never came forth from the door of the mouth.

What a miracle of loveliness and knowledge was Laura Bridgman, of New Hampshire! Not only without faculty of speech, but without hearing and without sight, all these faculties removed by sickness when 2 years of age, yet becoming a wonder at needlework, at the piano, at the sewing machine, and an intelligent student of the Scriptures, and confounding philosophers, who came from all parts of the world to study the phenomenon. Thanks to Christianity for what it has done for the amelioration of the condition of the deaf and the dumb. Back in the ages they were put to death as having no right, with such paucity of equipment, to live, and for centuries they were classed among the idiotic and unsafe.

But in the sixteenth century came Pedro Ponce, the Spanish monk, and in the seventeenth century came Juan Pablo Bonet, another Spanish monk, with dactylology or the finger alphabet, and in our own country we have had John Bradwood and Mrs. Mitchell and Ackery and Peet and Gallardet, who have given uncounted thousands of those whose tongues were forever silent the power to spell out on the air by a manual alphabet their thoughts about this world and their hopes for the next. We rejoice in the brilliant inventions in behalf of those who were born dumb.

One of the most impressive audiences I ever addressed was in the far West two or three years ago—an audience of about six hundred persons who had never heard a sound or spoke a word, an interpreter standing beside me while I addressed them. I congratulated that audience on two advantages they had over the most of us—the one that they escaped hearing a great many disagreeable things, and on the other fact that they escaped saying things they were sorry for afterward. Yet after all the alleviations a shackled tongue is an appalling limitation. But we are not this morning speaking of congenital mutes. We mean those who are born with all the faculties of vocalization and yet have been struck by the evil one mentioned in the text—the dumb devil to whom Christ called when he said, "Thou dumb and deaf spirit, I charge thee, come out of him."

There has been apotheciazation of silence. Some one has said that silence is golden, and sometimes the greatest triumph is to keep your mouth shut. But sometimes silence is a crime and the direct result of the baleful influence of the dumb devil of our text. There is hardly a man or a woman in this house to-day who has not been present on some occasion when the Christian religion became a target for raillery. Perhaps it was over in the store some day when there was not much going on and the clerks were in a group, or it was out on the farm under the trees while you were resting, or it was in the clubroom, or it was in a social circle, or it was in the street on the way home from business, or it was on some occasion which you remember without my describing it.

Some one got the laugh on the Bible and caricatured the profession of religion as hypocrisy, or made a pun out of something that Christ said. The laugh started and you joined in, and not one word of protest did you utter. What kept you silent? Modesty? No. Incapacity to answer? No. Lack of opportunity? No. It was a blow on both your lips by the wing of the dumb devil. If some one should malign your father or mother or wife or husband or child you would flush up quick, and either with an indignant word or doubled up fist make response. And yet here is our Christian religion, which has done so much for you and so much for the world that it will take all eternity to celebrate it, and yet when it was attacked you did not so much as say: "I differ, I object, I am sorry to hear you say that. There is another side to this."

You Christian people ought in such times as these to go armed, not with earthly weapons, but with the sword of the Spirit. You ought to have four or five questions with which you could confound any man who attacks Christianity. A man 90 years old was telling me a few days ago how he put to flight a scoffer. My aged friend said to the scoffer, "Did you ever read the history of Joseph in the Bible?" "Yes," said the man; "it is a fine story, and as interesting a story as I ever read."

"Well, now," said my old friend, "suppose that account of Joseph stopped half way?" "Oh," said the man, "then it would not be entertaining."

"Well, now," said my friend, "we have in this world only half of everything, and do you not think that when we hear the last half things may be consistent, and that then we may find that God was right?"

Oh, friends, better load up with a few interrogation points. You cannot afford to be silent when God and the Bible and the things of eternity are assailed. Your silence gives consent to the bombardment of your father's house. You allow a slur to be cast on your mother's dying pillow. In behalf of the Christ, who for you went through the agonies of assassination on the rocky bluff back of Jerusalem, you dared not face a sickly joke. Better load up with a few questions so that next time you will be ready.

Say to the scoffer: "My dear sir, will you tell me what makes the difference between the condition of woman in China and the United States? What do you think of the sermon on the mount? How do you like the golden rule laid down in the Scriptures? Are you in favor of the ten commandments? In your large and extensive reading have you come across a lovelier character than Jesus Christ? Will you please name the triumphant deathbeds of infidels and atheists? How do you account for the fact that among the out and out believers in Christianity were such persons as Benjamin Franklin, John Ruskin, Thomas Carlyle, Babington Macaulay, William Penn, Walter Scott, Charles Kingsley, Horace Bushnell, James A. Garfield, Robert E. Lee, Stonewall Jackson, Admiral Foote, Admiral Farragut, Cyprian S. Grant, John Milton, William Shakespeare, Chief Justice Marshall, John Adams, Daniel Webster, George Washington? How do you account for their fondness for the Christian religion? Among the innumerable colleges and universities of the earth will you name me three started by infidels and now supported by infidels? Down in your heart are you really happy in the position you occupy antagonistic to the Christian religion? When do you have the most rapturous views of the next world?"

Go to him with a few such questions and he will get so red in the face as to suggest apoplexy, and he will look at his watch and say he has an engagement and must go. You will put him in a sweat that will beat a Turkish bath. You will put him on a rout compared with which our troops at Bull Run made no time at all. Arm yourself, not with arguments but interrogation points, and I promise you victory. Shall such a man as you, shall such a woman as you surrender to one of the meanest spirits that ever smoked up from the pit—the dumb devil spoken of in the text?

But then there are occasions when this particular spirit that Christ exercised when He said, "I charge thee to come out of him," takes people by the whole sale. In the most responsive religious audience have you noticed how many people never sing at all? They have a book, and they have a voice, and they know how to read. They know many of the tunes, and yet are silent while the great raptures of music pass by. Among those who sing not one out of a hundred sings loud enough to hear his own voice. They hum it. They give a sort of religious grunt. They make the lips go, but it is inaudible. With a voice strong enough to stop a street car on block away, all they can afford in the praise of God is about half a whisper. With enough sopranos, enough altos, enough basses to make a small Heaven between the four walls, they let the opportunity go by unimproved.

The volume of voice that ascends from the largest audience that ever assembled ought to be multiplied about two thousand fold. But the minister rises and gives out the hymn; the organ begins; the choir or precentor leads; the audience are standing so that the lungs may have full expansion, and a mighty harmony is about to ascend, when the evil spirit spoken of in my text—the dumb devil—spreads his two wings, one over the lips of one-half the audience and the other wing over the lips of the other half of the audience, and the voices roll back into the throats from which they started, and only here and there anything is heard, and nine-tenths of the holy power is destroyed; and the dumb devil, as he flies away, says, "I could not keep Isaac Watts from writing that hymn, and I could not keep Lowell Mason from composing the tune to which it is set, but I smote into silence or half silence the lips from which it would have spread abroad to bless neighborhoods and cities, and then mount the wide open heavens."

Give the long meter doxology the full support of Christendom, and those four lines would take the whole earth for God.

Do not, however, let us lose ourselves in generalities. Not one of us but has had our lives sometimes touched by the evil spirit of the text—this awful dumb devil. We had just one opportunity of saying a Christian word that might have led a man or woman into a Christian life. The opportunity was fairly put before us. The word of invitation or consolation or warning came to the inside gate of the mouth but there it halted. Some hindering power locked the jaws together so that they did not open. The tongue lay flat and still in the bottom of the mouth as though struck with paralysis. We were mute. Though God had given us the physiological apparatus for speech, and our lungs were filled with air which, by the command of our will, could have made the laryngeal muscles move and the vocal organs vibrate, we were wickedly and fatally silent. For all time and eternity we missed our chance.

Or it was a prayer meeting, and the service was thrown open for prayer and remarks, and there was a dead halt—everything silent as a graveyard at midnight. Indeed it was a graveyard at midnight. An embarrassing pause took place that put a wet blanket on all the meeting. Men, bold enough on business exchange or in worldly circles, shut their eyes as though they were praying in silence, but they were not praying at all. They were busy hoping somebody else would do his duty. The women flushed under the awful pause and made their fans move rapidly flatter. Some brother with no cold coughed, by that sound trying to fill up the time, and the meeting was slain. But what killed it?—the dumb devil.

This is the way I account for the fact that the stupidest places on earth are some prayer meetings. I do not see how a man keeps any grace if he regularly attends them. They are spiritual refrigerators. Religion kept on ice. How many of us have lost occasions of usefulness? In a sculptor's studio stood a figure of the god Opportunity. The sculptor had made the hair fall down over the face of the statue so as to completely cover it, and there were wings to the feet. When asked why he so represented Opportunity, the sculptor answered, "The face of the statue is thus covered up because we do not recognize Opportunity when it comes, and the wings to the feet show that Opportunity is swiftly gone."

But do not let the world deride the church because of all this, for the dumb devil is just as conspicuous in the world. The two great political parties will soon assemble to build platforms for the Presidential candidates to stand on. A committee of each party will be appointed to make the platform. After proper deliberation the committees will come in with a ringing report, "Whereas" and "Whereas" and "Whereas." Pronouncements all shaped with the one idea of getting the most votes. All expression in regard to the great moral evils of the country ignored. No expression about the liquor traffic, for that would lose the rum vote. No expression in regard to the universal attempt at the demolition of God in the history of this nation for that would lose the vote of atheists. But "Whereas" and "Whereas" and "Whereas." Nine cheers will be given for the platform. The dumb devil of the text will put one wing over the Republican platform and the other wing over the Democratic platform. There is nothing involved in the next election except offices. The great conventions will be opened with prayer by their chaplains. If they avoid platitudes and tell the honest truth in their prayers they will say: "O Lord, we want to be postmasters and consuls and foreign ministers and United States district attorneys. For that we are here, and for that we will strive till the election next November. Give us office or we die, forever and ever. Amen."

The world, to say the least, is no better than the church on this subject of silence at the wrong time. In other words, is it not time for Christianity to become pronounced and aggressive as never before? Take sides for God and sobriety and righteousness. "If the Lord be God, follow Him, if Baal, then follow Him." Have you opportunity of rebuking a sin? Rebuke it. Have you a chance to cheer a disheartened soul? Cheer it. Have you a useful word to speak? Speak it. Be out and out, and down for righteousness. If your ship is afloat on the Pacific Ocean of God's mercy, hang out your colors from masthead. Show your passport if you have one. Do not smuggle your soul into the harbor of Heaven. Speak out for God! This morning close up the chapter of lost opportunities and pitch it into the East River and open a new chapter. Before you get to the door on your way out this morning shake hands with some one, and ask him to join you on the road to Heaven. Do not drive up to Heaven in a two-wheeled "sully" with room only for one, and that yourself, but get the biggest Gospel wagon you can find, and pile it full of friends and neighbors, and shout till they hear you all up and down the skies. "Come with us, and we will do you good, for the Lord hath promised good concerning Israel."

The opportunity for good which you may consider insignificant may be tremendous for results, as when on sea Capt. Holdan swore at the ship's crew with an oath that wished them all in perdition, and a Scotch sailor touched his cap and said, "Captain, God hears prayer, and we would be badly off if your wish were answered." Captain Holdan was convicted by the sailor's remark and converted, and became the means of the salvation of his brother Robert, who had been an infidel, and then Robert became a minister of the Gospel, and under his ministry the godless Felix Neff became the world renowned missionary of the Cross, and the worldly Merle L'Aubigne became the author of "The History of the Reformation," and will be the glory of the church for all ages.

Perhaps you may do as much as the Scotch sailor who just tipped his cap and used one broken sentence, by which the earth and the heavens are still resounding with potent influences. Do something for God, and do it right away, or you will never do it at all.

A single bee, with all its industry, energy and the innumerable journeys it has to perform, will not collect more than a teaspoonful of honey in a single season, yet the total weight of honey taken from a single hive is often from 60 to 100 pounds—a profitable lesson to man of great results from united labor.

Statisticians say that an average man of 154 pounds weight has enough iron in his constitution to make a plowshare, and enough phosphorus to make half a million matches.

To Stay or to Go. Which?
To attack the dragon of disease and annihilate him before his deadly talons grow, or to allow him to attain dangerous maturity and destroy us—that is the question of paramount importance to all afflicted with organic ailments. Among these, disorders of the kidneys and bladder are of the fatal order if untreated at the outset. Their growth is rapid, their culmination death. Bright's disease, ordinary nephritis, diabetes, catarrh of the bladder, gravel, suppression of the secretion, cannot be tampered with or disregarded safely. Foster's Kidney Pills are a potent depurative tonic, giving the free passage, without excitation, to the renal organs, besides strengthening and regulating them in common with the rest of the system. It infuses, too, vigor and regularity into the stomach, bowels and liver, successfully counteracts malaria and liver rheumatism, and is a pre-eminently safe tonic for the aged, the enfeebled and the convalescent.

Smith and his wife have every luxury that money can buy, but there is one thing lacking to their happiness. Both are fond of children, but no little voices prattle, no little feet patter in their beautiful home. "I would give ten years of my life if I could have one healthy, living child of my own," Smith often says to himself. No woman can be the mother of healthy offspring unless she herself is in good health. If she suffers from female weakness, general debility, bearing-down pains and functional derangements, her physical condition is such that she cannot hope to have healthy children. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a sovereign and guaranteed remedy for all these ailments. It builds them up. It's a powerful, restorative tonic, or strength-giver—free from alcohol and injurious drugs. The entire system is renewed and invigorated. It improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, gives refreshing sleep, and restores flesh and strength.

It's the only guaranteed medicine for women, sold by druggists.

MET INSTANT DEATH.

MANY KILLED IN A WRECK ON THE BIG FOUR.

At High Speed a Passenger Train Crashes Into a Freight at Cleveland, Ohio—Five Bodies Taken from the Wreck—Three Others Cannot Survive.

An Awful Fate.

In the midst of a terrific storm of wind and rain two Big Four trains crashed into each other at Cleveland, Ohio, Sunday morning, with awful effect. Not a person on either train escaped injury. Many of the wounded have been removed, and their number is not definitely known. As far as learned the dead are: Engineer Wm. Higgs of Indianapolis, Fireman Hiram Bruce of Indianapolis, Philip Gibson, David Harwood, Engineer Berry Edwards. Those removed from the wreck and found to be fatally injured are: Fireman Holton Tyrrell; Conductor John Schroeder, George W. Hudler.

Five to eight passengers are said to be missing, who are supposed to be in the smelter, which is buried in the wreck. Nothing is known as to who they are. No one is able to conceive how any of them could have escaped death under that mass of wreckage.

The summer schedule went into effect Sunday morning, and orders had been issued accordingly. Freight No. 43, a through train north-bound, had orders to stop at North Bend to allow express No. 80, a cannon-ball special, to pass. Under the old schedule the trains passed at another point some miles further on. Instead of stopping the freight engineer, Higgs, pulled ahead and approached Cleveland running at the rate of twenty miles an hour. Why he did not stop at North Bend will never be known, as he is dead, but it is thought that in his anxiety over this storm, which might have washed out bridges, he forgot the new schedule and hurried on.

As the train approached Cleveland Chas. Smith, the telegraph operator, was astounded, for he knew that it should have side-tracked at North Bend, and that the express, a few minutes overdue then, was but a short distance away, running forty-five miles an hour to make up lost time. Smith rushed to the signal wires and dashed off the danger signal. Either it was not seen in the blinding rain or the engineer could not control his engine, for it sped on by without lessening speed.

At that very moment the express came into sight with the speed of the wind. If any effort was made on either engine to slacken speed it was not appreciable, and the iron monsters sprang at each other and crashed into each other with a roar that rolled above the storm like a clap of thunder. Both engines were battered into shapeless masses and rolled off the track.

The cars behind were mashed into kindling and the track for 100 feet was torn up. Telegraph poles were thrown down, and it was two or three hours after the wreck before word reached Cleveland, and a special train was sent to the scene from Cincinnati. Long before, however, the people from the little village and from the surrounding country had gathered, and in the frightful storm were doing all they could for the victims.

With the arrival of the special train the work of getting out the dead began. Of the five bodies recovered four were shockingly mangled and mashed out of all human shape. Under the freight engine, broken, crushed and scalded, were found Engineer William Higgs and his fireman, Hiram Bruce, both of Indianapolis. Under a mangled freight car farther back Philip Gibson and David Harwood were found. Nearly every bone in their bodies was broken and their faces were horribly disfigured.

The fifth body taken out was that of Barry Edwards, engineer of the passenger train. His fireman, Holton Tyrrell, had jumped before the crash, but had been caught under a mass of wreckage. His chest was crushed in and his head out. He was taken to Lawrenceburg, but cannot survive. John Schroeder, conductor of the passenger train, was injured in almost the same manner, and can live but a few hours at the most. George W. Hudler, a commercial traveler from Miamisburg, was crushed between two seats, being bent almost double. He was taken to the Cincinnati hospital and cannot survive.

Conductor Schroeder was only able to speak once after being extricated. Then it was that he gave the information that when the train left Valley Junction there were from five to eight men in the smelter. Valley Junction is less than two miles from the scene of the wreck. This is the basis for the fear that these people are buried in death under the wreck.

"Honey" Keefe, a freight brakeman, had just reached the top of a car when the collision occurred. The crash was so terrible that he was thrown over a telegraph wire forty feet into a stream of water, which saved his life.

The property loss will be $100,000. Both engines are complete wrecks, and the coaches of the express train are ruined. It is said much valuable mail and express matter is lost. A dozen freight cars loaded with costly goods are a total loss.

A train on the Norfolk & Western road was wrecked eleven miles from Hagerstown, Md., at 1 o'clock Sunday morning. It was in charge of Conductor William Hays, and was made up of a sleeper, two coaches, a smoker, and a baggage car. Just as the engine reached the switch it jumped the track and dashed into freight cars on a siding. Conductor Hays was on the platform of a car and was hurled headlong thirty feet against the rocks and instantly killed. John Hauke, a passenger hailing from Lewistown, Pa., was dug out of the wreck with a broken leg and suffering internal injuries. He will die. His father was also badly hurt. Another passenger, supposed to be a drummer, was taken out in a dying condition. A card found in his pocket bore the name John Boyle, Brooklyn, N. Y. C. N. Wenner, traveling passenger agent, and William Ellinger of West Fairview, Penn., were also severely hurt.

THE electric plant at the Virginus Mine in Colorado, 12,500 feet above the sea level, has reduced the expense of mining to a wonderful degree. The expense for coal formerly averaged $100 a day. The present power is furnished by the water obtained at Red Canyon Creek, four miles from the mine.

THE contract for the erection of the Ohio State Building has been let for $24,465. Donated material and furnishings will make the structure represent a total expenditure of perhaps $50,000.

$40,000 Damage in Ten Seconds

The destruction of the great Corlies engine in No. 4 mill of the Willamette Lumber Company was a most remarkable accident. The engine, which was a new one from the works of Hewes & Phillips, Newark, N. J., was of 1,500-horsepower, and said to be the most powerful single engine in the country, and an engine house had to be built expressly for it. Its driving wheel was twenty-eight feet in diameter and revolved on a fifteen-inch thick shaft that was twenty feet long.

The accident was caused by a clean fracture of the great shaft while the wheel was running with only 400-horsepower. The wheel sank into the wheel pit with a crash, carrying the roof of engine house and the east and west walls of the mill with it. Bricks were hurled 300 feet, entirely through the middle of the main factory. The wheel was broken into fragments and all its spokes were broken off at the hub. Over $40,000 damage was done in ten seconds. D. E. Potter, who was in the engine-room, saved his life by diving through a window in a door that was only eighteen inches square. Engineer Schoenck and Alex. Dorsey also had narrow escapes. The loss falls on the Newark company, since the engine had not been accepted by the lumber company, who never believed that the monstrous machine would work successfully.

Telegraphing the Nomination.

What we are accustomed to call the marvels of the telegraph have become a trifle stale through long familiarity. But some of the results accomplished by the use of the electric wire are of a character, owing to peculiar circumstances, which is almost startling even though common-place and perfectly well understood. An illustration of this statement is often afforded when a political convention of great interest to the public is held. When the nomination for the principal office on the ticket is made, it frequently becomes known at points hundreds of miles distant before the spectators in the convention hall and possibly a majority of the delegates themselves have been informed of it. The reason is very simple. When the contest is a close one between opposing candidates, there is usually a scene of tumult in the convention that for ten or twelve minutes it cannot be announced beyond the chairman's table who has been chosen; but the operator at the teller's side flashes the news to distant cities instantly.

A Word for the Rustler.

The "rustlers" are small ranchmen who have taken up small holdings and fenced them, giving their small herds good water and feed, and also protection from large herds. These people look ultimately to cultivate the arable portion of their ranches, and have in most instances selected them with this in view. Thus located they seek to become permanent settlers, and consequently the cattle barons seek to drive them out. In order to accomplish their purpose the small ranchmen have been subjected to a series of petty prosecutions. The "stock association" has issued lists of ranchmen owning brands and small herds, with instructions to foremen not to give employment, and with practical promise of immunity for any manner of injustice toward them. The barons own the State and make the laws, consequently those who fall under their displeasure are likely to find the way to wealth and happiness rather thorny.—Milwaukee Journal.

About Walking.

A French physician is authority for the statement that the regular tramp of marching soldiers is much more harmful to brain and body than the less regular walk of the ordinary pedestrian. According to the scientist, walking ten miles in line is as exhaustive as walking twenty at a go-as-you-please gait.

Change of Monon Ticket Office.

The ticket office of the Monon Route has been changed to 222 Clark street, Chicago, from its former location. The train service of this well-known and popular line still maintains its superiority. The Monon trains out of Chicago to Cincinnati, Louisville, and the South are models of comfort and elegance, and are the best patronized of any running to the South.

A PROFITABLE TALK.

OUR SPECIAL REPORTER SECURES THE FACTS.

He Determined to Thoroughly Investigate a Subject That is Causing Much Comment, and He Has Succeeded.
(New York Sun.)

Two days ago one of the most prominent professional men in New York published a letter so outspoken, so unusual as to cause extensive talk and awaken much comment. Yesterday I interviewed the gentleman as to the basis of the letter, and he fully confirmed it in every respect. He not only did this, but he also mentioned a number of unusual cases which had come under his observation, in which little less than a miracle had been performed.

So important has the entire subject become that I determined to investigate it to the bottom, and, accordingly, called upon Mr. Albert S. Eaves, the prominent oculist, at No. 43 East Twelfth street, the gentleman mentioned in my interview with the doctor yesterday. Mr. Eaves has made quite a name. A complete knowledge of history, an appreciation of art and reliability are essential in his profession.

"Mr. Eaves," I said, "I learn that your wife has had a most unusual experience; are you willing to describe it?"
The gentleman thought a moment, and an expression of pleasure passed over his face. "When I think," he said, "of what my wife once passed through, and the condition she is in to-day, I cannot but feel grateful. Nearly three years ago she was at the point of death. You can understand how sick she was when I say she was totally blind and lay in a state of unconsciousness. Three doctors attended her, and all agreed that her death was only a question of hours, perhaps minutes."

"May I ask what the doctors called her trouble?"
"Uremia and puerperal convulsions, so you can imagine how badly she must have been. At last one doctor (it was Dr. R. A. Gunn) said that as she was still able to swallow one more attempt might be made, and a medicine was accordingly given her. She seemed to improve at once; in a few days her sight was restored. 'I have had a long, long sleep,' she said, upon recovering consciousness, and I am rejoiced to say that she was restored to perfect health wholly through the use of Warner's Safe Cure, which was the remedy we administered when she was past all consciousness."

I looked at Mr. Eaves as he said this. His face was beaming with satisfaction. He continued:

"The physicians told us, after my wife's recovery, that she never could endure childbirth, and yet we have a fine boy nearly a year old, and do not know what sickness I attribute it all to the wonderful power of Warner's Safe Cure. Why, my sister, who resides in Virginia, was a while ago, afflicted precisely as my wife had been. I at once advised her to use this same great remedy; it cured her promptly."

"You find that it is especially adapted for women, do you?" I inquired.
"By no means. I have known it to be wonderful in its power in the case of gentlemen to whom I have recommended it. I speak from my experience entirely, and you should not be surprised that I am so firm a believer in this discovery, which has done so much for me."

I was not surprised. I saw by every word, by every look, that Mr. Eaves meant all he said. I had ample confirmation of Dr. Gunn's letter and interview, and I do not wonder that people who have seen such things, who have watched their dearest friends go down into the dark valley and be brought back into the light, should be both enthusiastic and grateful. I myself caught the spirit, and I shall be glad if the investigations I have made prove of profit to those who may read them.

The meeting of the South Ottawa Teachers' Association, held here Saturday, was one of the most interesting of the season, and was well attended, also by teachers from Allegan county. The session was called to order by the president, Miss Josephine Cook, and the exercises were opened with singing and prayer. Under the head of miscellaneous business, Casper Lahuis, of the committee on a joint meeting of the South and North Ottawa Associations, to be held in June, made his report, after which it was decided to hold the joint meeting at Grand Haven, some time in the early part of June, the date to be decided upon in the near future.

James R. Sooy, of Hudsonville, and Casper Lahuis of Zeeland, were appointed a committee to draft resolutions in memory of the death of the late John R. Strabbing of Drenthe, an old and efficient teacher.

Casper Lahuis presented a witty and well prepared paper on "Competition among the Profession", followed by discussion by Herman Rigerink, Prof. P. A. Latta, and others.

The Association did not realize they had been engaged in the actual labor for full two and a half hours, until H. J. Klomprens sounded that most welcome of all bugle calls, and lead us into the adjoining room, which was filled with pleasant faces, both old and young. The tables were spread with all the luxuries that life could afford.

In the afternoon session the executive committee was authorized to arrange a program for the meeting to be held in June.

"Should Technical Grammar be Taught below the Sixth Grade?" was presented by Paul R. Coster, when a general discussion followed in which all took an active part.

The most pleasing part of the meeting were the toasts and responses, with J. R. Sooy as toast master.

The first speaker was county comm'r P. H. Latta, of Allegan, who responded to the toast "The Relation of the Commissioner to Teachers".

Next came L. R. Heasley, who was called upon to respond to the toast, "Politics in the school room". (It will be remembered that Mr. H. was before the people, one year ago, as school inspector, on the republican ticket, and last spring as justice, on the democratic ticket.)

C. Lahuis dwelt upon "The Teacher in his Relation to his Patrons and the School board," while H. J. Klomprens took the reverse order of this topic and talked about the relation of the school board and the patrons to the school.

The last speaker to be introduced was J. H. Heasley.

The meeting closed with appropriate remarks by the president, Miss Cook, on the "Pleasures and Labors of the Association".

The Young People's Musical Union held a concert at the close of their term, which was largely attended. All were very well pleased with the exercises. The leader, R. A. Hyma, was given a present as a token of appreciation on the part of the members.
